Story #1 (of 3): Clowning Around

No circus would be fun without some clowning around. When Jack was just 10, he learned a few really cool clown tricks. His classmates loved them. His teachers didn't. In fact, they got really angry when homework disappeared. He became very good at the tricks he learned. So, when he was 15, he entered a Circus Clown Program! And he studied with some of the best circus clowns ever. He learned to juggle, tumble, rope-dance, and do tricks on the back of a running horse. At the end of the program, Jack toured with the Greatest Show on Earth. And because Jack worked so hard, he became a very famous circus clown.

How did Jack learn many new and difficult tricks? Most of the time, he learned by watching other people and then practicing over and over. Jack kept practicing the tricks over and over until he could do them well. How do you like to learn new things?

The End.
